Art Institutes, South University, and Argosy University: Pre-
Acquisition Review Applications to Department of Education for OPE ID# 02117100, 0092700, 008877800, 01303900

Dear Secretary DeVos:

For the last six months, we have been working with the Department of Education and regional accreditation bodies in the United States to accomplish saving the jobs of 5,000 full-time faculty, administrators, and staff (plus 9,000 adjunct faculty) and the academic career path of almost 50,000 college students through our "acquisition" of South University, Argosy University and 31 Art Institutes across the United States.

We are so pleased that in the last 2 weeks our change of ownership has been approved by the Southern Association of Schools and Colleges (SACS) for South University and Art Institutes in their region and we completed the process with Western Association of Schools and Colleges (WASC) for Argosy University and the Art Institutes in their region.

Our CEO, Brent Richardson, our founder, Pastor Matthew Barnett and myself, respectfully request an opportunity for 15 minutes of your time, anywhere or anytime for a presentation to share with you our vision to transform these three for-profit university systems at 62 campuses across the United States to private non-profit education that will help people live better lives, add thousands of new jobs and provide our current and future students with the job skills to grow the economy.

Sincerely,

DREAM CENTER FOUNDATION

A note for Dr Wayne Johnson on the for profit schools issue. I am told it will be helpful. Hope all is well.

Here is what gets the deal done:

Company leaves $85 million of their $225 million in place as the Department's request for a Letter of Credit for 2 years. The company pays all the costs. Company gets back balance of LoC.

The Department makes good on its commitment to eliminate all other restrictions.

The Company pays for 10 campuses to be closed. Management teaches out smooth landing.

Our investor puts up $25 million cash for Operating Capital.

The Department ignores the requirement of Opening Day balance sheet because of LoC.

Our investor provides capital and our management team cooperate with the Department in a partnership for the 800+ other schools in trouble with one million students at risk.

The Department can order all of this to happen...specifically Dr. Wayne Johnson. He should meet with Brent now.

I wanted to see if you thought the Secretary might be interested in a three or four day Commencement Address tour of the Middle East. Particularly Georgetown in Doha and American in Dubai. Maybe throw in a third in Israel to hit all the bases. Could be a great international trip.
